IT Efficiencies Maximize the Global Freight Forwarding Process

The global freight and logistics environment is considerably more dynamic and complex than it has been in the past. This is especially true with the current worldwide economic situation. IT solutions can be applied across a wide scope of business functions to automate and integrate various company processes and manage them throughout the entire freight forwarding process. A single platform IT infrastructure can maximize virtually all supply chain business functions without incurring additional expenses. This ultimately enables forwarders to more efficiently manage global operations electronically through a single software system, allowing the forwarding operation to provide consistency, improved and timely shipment status communications and vastly improved global supply chain visibility.

Read the complete article, including the Seven Ways IT can Maximize the Global Process here.

The entire freight forwarding process is evolving as global economic changes occur, and requires advanced, efficient IT tools to support these market dynamics.

ediBroker US CBP Updated Form 7501

CBP is extending the deadline for the requirement to use the June 2009 version of the CBP Form 7501. The new effective date is April 1, 2010. As of April 1, 2010, the only official form that CBP will support is the CBP Form 7501 dated June 2009. ediEnterprise has been updated to the current version of form 7501 to support this requirement. To read the Update Note click here

WESCCON 2009 in Rancho Mirage

As part of our ongoing commitment to the industry, CargoWise edi is pleased to participate in WESCCON 2009 to be held 8-11 October at Rancho Las Palmas Resort in Rancho Mirage, California. WESCCON is produced by the Pacific Coast Council of Customs Brokers and Freight Forwards Associations (PCC). PCC was established to further the interests of Pacific Coast freight forwarders and customs brokers, their customers, U.S. Exporters and importers, and the entire international trade community, to foster the unimpeded flow of international trade along the U.S. Pacific Coast and to assure the productive participation of forwarders and brokers. WESCCON offers attendees a variety of educational, networking and social opportunities. Bill Todd and Kurt Corman will be representing CargoWise edi at WESCCON 2009 and we hope to see you there too! For registration and more information go to www.wescon.com
