

CargoWise edi Extends Global Education Sponsorship Program

- New Educational Sponsorship to Include NCBFAA's National Education Institute Certified Customs Specialist Program -

Chicago, IL USA, March 20, 2008 — CargoWise™ edi, a leading provider of integrated international supply chain logistics management systems, announced it is expanding its global educational sponsorship program to include the National Customs Brokers & Forwarders Association of America's (NCBFAA) National Education Institute Certified Customs Specialist (CCS) program. CargoWise edi will implement its ediTariff educational program and will be providing free software and support desk help to the students enrolled in the program. The Company will also be presenting a "Highest Achievement" award to the top performing student each year.

CargoWise edi's ediTariff incorporates all relevant customs tariff texts, documents and legislation. It simplifies the tariff classification process and assists with Customs Business Rules and maintaining compliance, making it the ideal import and export software tool.

The CCS program is designed to elevate professional standards in order to enhance individual performance, and to designate those who demonstrate knowledge essential to the importation, regulation and logistics management of products into the United States. The program helps keep those involved in importation activities informed and abreast of the latest rules, regulations and requirements of their very technical jobs.

Darrell Sekin Jr., Chairman of the NEI Committee and Secretary for NCBFAA, stated: "We are proud that firms such as CargoWise edi have taken notice of what we are trying to do and want to be a part of that effort. It is our desire to be able to offer value and incentives to our CCS students who strive to improve themselves through this learning opportunity, and this CargoWise edi sponsorship program will assist us in meeting that goal."

"CargoWise edi has a long history of sponsoring important educational programs within the freight forwarding industry and we are pleased to add this new educational sponsorship program in the area of Customs Business Rules," said Cris Arens, President of CargoWise edi. "We look forward to a strong working relationship with NCBFAA and its CCS students to help advance professional standards in this field."
