

CargoWise Recognized As Vendor of the Year by Mallory Alexander

- Award Presented in the Category of Information Technology -

Chicago, IL, USA, February 25, 2010 — CargoWise®, a globally recognized technology supplier for logistics service providers, was recently awarded the Vendor of the Year – Information Technology Award from its customer Mallory Alexander International Logistics, a leading global third party logistics company based in Memphis, Tennessee.

Mallory Alexander selected CargoWise to implement its ediEnterprise freight management system in 2009. CargoWise provided the necessary support and technical resources to ensure the company could reach its ultimate goal of a successful implementation and launch of the enterprise system in the same year. To meet the implementation deadline, CargoWise worked closely with the company while keeping their focus on its key objective of providing a flexible and integrated single platform solution for its customers well into the future.

“The diversity of logistics business managed by Mallory, and the impact of a major system rollout presented significant technical and operational challenges for our company,” said Terry Maready, CIO for Mallory Alexander. “The technical support and training resources provided by CargoWise were instrumental in helping us prepare for these challenges, and we overcame major hurdles as we launched into this multi-month project. As a result, our implementation is moving forward nicely, and CargoWise’s partnership and commitment to our success remains strong.”

“We are honored to accept this award from Mallory Alexander,” said Gene Gander, Vice President Sales – Americas for CargoWise. “This recognition means a great deal to the Company and our team. We take great pride in our work and the technical services we provide to our customers. This acknowledgment makes our hard work all the more worthwhile as we continue to strive for these high standards.”
